

Contemporary Concepts in Spine Surgery

The educational program is designed for the practicing spine surgeon and other professionals interested in surgery of the spinal column. The course will provide a comprehensive update and review that is strongly recommended for those interested in taking the spine, orthopaedic or neurosurgery board examinations.

In addition, controversial topics and emerging technologies are also covered by our distinguished faculty. A unique aspect of the program this year will provide for anonymous submission of challenging cases for discussion in an open forum to facilitate learning. You'll find the program stimulating and educational.

MEET THE PROGRAM DIRECTOR'S:

Jeffery C. Wang, M.D.

Dr. Wang is Chief of the UCLA Spine Service, Director of the UCLA Spine Surgery Fellowship, and board certified. Dr. Wang is an Associate Professor of Neurosurgery, Orthopaedic Surgery, and Biomechanical Engineering with expertise in the surgical treatment of all neck and back disorders. Dr. Wang is the Executive Director of the UCLA Comprehensive Spine Center.

Alexander Vaccaro, M.D.

Dr. Vaccaro is Co-Director of the Delaware Valley Regional Spinal Cord Injury Center at Thomas Jefferson University, one of the largest referral programs for spinal injury in the country. He also serves as Co-Director of Reconstructive Spine Services at the Rothman Institute and as Co-Director of Spine Fellowships at Thomas Jefferson University.
